ABOUT LES NORMAN

Les Norman is a former Junior Olympic Gold Medalist & Major League outfielder, and is currently the host of “Breakin’ The Norm”, a sports talk show on KC’s Sports Radio 810WHB. He has also served as color analyst for that same station’s “Baseball Tonight Pregame Show”, as well as the “James B. Nutter Post Game Show” on TV’s Metro Sports Channel. Despite a difficult childhood with an abusive alcoholic father, Les used his love of baseball as an outlet to achieve his boyhood dream: Major league baseball player.

As an entrepreneur, radio host and public speaker, Les connects with his audiences on a personal level, sharing the foundations of his success both as an individual achiever and a team leader.

A fearless competitor, compassionate leader and trained observer, Les describes the skills that led him from a place of obscurity to the pinnacle of his passion. He shares his knowledge in a manner that enables his audiences to transfer these insights into meaningful action steps in their lives. Not one for maintaining “the Norm”, Les’ unique, cutting-edge presentation style will leave you on the edge of your seat! His ability to think outside the box and challenge those around him will help your organization realize what they need to see-themselves as a commodity!

Les has been passionately motivating and inspiring others on a national stage sharing stories your audience will never forget! He skillfully adapts his message to ensure its relevance to the opportunities and challenges faced by his audience.
